FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

ATLAS MEDICAL TO EXHIBIT AT TWO UPCOMING PATHOLOGY CONFERENCES

Calabasas, CA, September 1, 2011, ATLAS Medical a leader in healthcare connectivity today announced plans to participate in two upcoming pathology conferences. The Company will demonstrate its Anatomic Pathology order entry and results reporting solution to the attendees of CAP '11, "The Pathologist's Meeting" to be held from September 11 - 14, 2011 in Grapevine, Texas, and at the Pathology Informatics 2011 conference from October 4 -7, 2011 in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

ATLAS' Anatomic Pathology module offers specialized support for anatomic pathology order entry with body mass diagrams, requisitions, labels and customized reporting. The product features include detailed specimen information and sophisticated reports formats, including the ability to combine clinical and AP reports. Specialized order entry functions streamline data capture, with features such as cascading ask-at-order entry questions and specimen site location using a library of body mass diagrams.

"The ATLAS Anatomic Pathology module extends the benefits of clean electronic orders to the clinical pathology laboratory," states Julie Pantalone, Vice President of Sales for ATLAS Medical. "Order entry for both clinical and pathology tests and procedures can be efficiently entered using the same order screen. We look forward to offering clinicians and other attendees the opportunity to view a demonstration of our robust product functionality at these conferences."

Information about CAP '11, The Pathologist's Meeting can be found by visiting their website at www.cap.org/apps/docs/annual_meeting/2011/index.html. ATLAS will be showcasing its Anatomic Pathology product in Booth #620.

The Pathology Informatics 2011 conference is the product of more than 40 cumulative years of experience in providing continuing medical education in the area of pathology informatics. The conference website is www.pathinformatics.pitt.edu/.
